HALONG BAY – THE UNESCO WORLD NATURAL HERITAGE

HALONG BAY – means “Descending dragon bay”. Legend has it that long long ago when the Vietnamese were fighting the invaders, God sent a family of dragons to help them. This family of dragons began spitting out jewels and jade. These jewels turned into the islands and islets dotting the bay, linking together to form a great wall against the invaders. The people kept their land safe and formed what later became the country of Vietnam. After that, dragons were interested in peaceful sightseeing of the Earth and decided to live here then.

The place where Mother Dragon flew down was named Hạ Long bay, the place where the dragon children attended upon their mother was called Bái Tử Long bay, and the place where the dragon children wriggled their tails violently was called Bạch Long Vỹ island.
